

CAREER

TOP 3

All work has dignity – be humble

Be open to new opportunities – the way things will be in the future may be different from the past – careers change with the times is adaptable – and think outside the norm. You'll never know where the next career will originate. It may start at the least likely of places.

Your career should not be the only indicator of who we are as individuals. You are who you are. Not what your job was.

NEXT TOP 7

Be patient – stick to your plan - don't panic and take something that may not be right for you.

Find what you like or Love to do and pursue with all you have!!

Balance of time for family, work, you ... all three are needed for a stable life.

Like your job – Love your family

Take advantage of every networking opportunity, no matter how casual!

Find someone who is successful and ask their help to plan your career.

Keep looking and preparing. Don't let the holidays be an excuse to give up on the job search. Celebrate your achievements – Don't let transition hold you down.

CAREER ALL OTHER

Career does not define you!!

Doesn't Define Me!

Your job does not define you, but you should find meaning to it.

You are not defined by your career unless you want it that way – but ask does it serve you? There are many opportunities out there. Be at the right place at the right time!

Business associates by chance – friends by choice.

Search and research to find a career you'll love.

It is what you want it to be.

Review all your accomplishments and make your success plan.

Know what you want – and don't give up.

There is a company that needs your skills and experience.

Purpose – Produces – Passion

Most of my jobs were related to my career.

Love justice, do mercy walk humbly with your God. Love & be loved & work hard.

If you have the chance look at work that you have always wanted to do.

Allow yourself to take a break in job search. It may find you when you aren't looking.

Keep an open mind in considering what you can and will do.

Take this time to reflect what you'd really like to do in your next job.

Shut-up and listen

Network with every person you meet.

Boldly seek the next position – it might be a new career.

Every time I lose a job, the next one is so much better.

Use this time to better yourself. Maybe take the time to develop or change your career path.

Accept changes

Don't be afraid of change.

What you've done is not all you can do.

Career is everything we have done and care to communicate.